Spotlight on a Great Musician

ARTURO SANDOVAL

Fun Facts

Arturo's first instrument was the trombone, but he fell in love with the trumpet after also trying the bass drum and the flute.

Arturo is now most famous for playing the trumpet, but he also sings and plays piano, drums, and many other instruments.

Fun Facts Continued...

Arturo began performing on the street when he was just 12 years old.

Arturo was born in Cuba, but came to the United States in search of a country that would allow him freedom to listen to and play any style of music he wanted.

During the Cold War, Arturo spent several months in jail for listening to Jazz music on an American radio station in Cuba.

Arturo loves all types of music, but jazz is his true passion.

Arturo is an advocate of freedom around the world and has said many times, "Without freedom there is no life."

Arturo is now a U.S. citizen and was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President Barack Obama in 2013.

Arturo practices music 6-7 hours a day and writes new songs daily.

Arturo has won 10 Grammy awards and performed with many famous musicians including Tony Bennett, Gloria Estefan, Frank Sinatra, Dizzy Gillespie, and Tito Puente.
